Military Retirees' COLA to rise by 3.6 percent

After two years of having no annual adjustment, military retirees will receive a 3.6 percent cost-of-living adjustment effective Dec. 1. The money will first appear in January checks.

The same percentage increase will apply to Social Security, federal civilian retired pay and other government entitlements linked to the Consumer Price Index. The retiree increase is larger than the 1.6 percent pay raise expected on Jan. 1 for the military. The difference result from the fact retired pay is adjusted to keep pace with consumer prices while military basic pay rises to keep pace with private-sector wages.

Since 2009, there has been no retiree cost-of-living adjustment because weak economic conditions kept overall consumer prices flat or falling. Thing have been different this year.

Although the job market remains bleak, the cost of goods and services has been rising. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the index of consumer prices was 3.9 percent higher in September than one year earlier. Gasoline, energy and food costs were the primary reason for the jump.

The COLA for military retirees is 3.6 percent, and not 3.9 percent, because COLA increases are calculated by comparing consumer prices for three months - July, August and September - to costs for the same three months in the previous year.

The two-year freeze in retired pay and other entitlements was not the result of Congress or the administration trying to save money, although that has been a popular belief. There is a chance, though, that future COLAs could be capped or even denied as a result of ongoing deficit-reduction talks in Congress.

The Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction, empowered to come up with a package of $1.2 trillion over 10 years in savings, is considering a change in how COLAs are calculated that would result in annual increases that are as much as 0.5 percent smaller than the current calculation. The proposed new formula would have lower consumer prices by disregarding price increases in some goods and services if people could use a less expensive alternative product or service.

EPA Rules Lejeune Water Contaminant Causes Cancer

A long-anticipated report by the Environmental Protection Agency determined this week that exposure to the chemical degreaser TCE causes cancer in humans. In the Camp Lejeune community, this means that those who lived and worked on base between the 1950s and 1980s, when solvents including TCE contaminated the water supply, may have finally proved what was making them sick.

The report, recently released, found that exposure to TCE, short for trichloroethylene, is convincingly linked to kidney cancer, non-Hodgkin lymphoma and liver cancer, with more limited evidence that it causes bladder, esophageal, prostate, cervical, and breast cancers, as well as childhood leukemia.

RAO BULLETINS

Each month your editor attempts to review all RAO Bulletins and put articles deemed important to veterans into our newsletters and I will continue to do so. However, what may be important to me may not be important to you and I may very possibly overlook something you as a veteran might like to know about, so I am providing a link below that will take you to ALL current bulletins so that you might look them over. The below bulletin is dated November 1st, 2011.

FRANCHISE NEWS

Salisbury, MD Minuteman Press Owners SUPPORTS OUR TROOPS

For the past 3 and a half years Diana and Jeff Merritt, owners of the Salisbury Minuteman Center in Maryland, have been giving their time to help support our service men and women who are deployed overseas. They started a non-for-profit organization in their area called Operation We Care.

On Sunday May 22nd, 2011 they held a packing party at the Powellville Fire House in Powellville, MD. Diana said they had 150 volunteers come in from all areas and they were able to send about 250 packages with various items. They were overjoyed with the amount of people who came out and volunteered their time to make sure the members of the armed services who are overseas know that they have support back home.

The basis of the organization is to send packages overseas to men and women serving in the military. The packages contain anything that the soldiers may need, including but not limited to phone cards, instant coffee, baby wipes, and body wash. They hold events through-out southern Maryland to raise money for postage, and have two packing parties a year around Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

Minuteman Presses corporate office is honored to have Diana and Jeff as owners of one of our Minuteman Press centers. For more information about Operation We Care, www.operationwecare.org.
